Tourism and Development in the Third World - John Lea

What is the truth behind the paradise beaches in travel brochures? What can a developing country do when one exotic holiday seems much like another, when political instability or environmental disaster...