The study of women in the ancient Mediterranean world is a topic of growing interest among classicists and ancient historians, and also scholars of history.