

Directing Television - Nick Bamford

At the centre of the creative television process is the pivotal role of the director. Directing Television provides an inside view of the everyday realities of TV programme making with advice from an

