The Death of the Book: Modernist Novels and the Time of Reading - John Lurz

An examination of the ways major modernist novels use the physical book to track the passing of time in which reading necessarily unfolds, this study explores the sense of finitude and transience that